A world without war is my dream

These days are so dark

Hamburg, 24.10.2023, 14:11 Time

USPA NEWS - Imagine, in the Earth, no one harbored hatred; imagine everyone came together to build a peaceful world.

Imagine, instead of wasting time on religious ideologies and extremism, some people turned to growth, thinking, reading, and love.

Imagine, in a world where no one envied another.

Imagine, we had a world where everyone was committed, helping others, and build a better future for children.

Imagine, no country was an enemy of another.

Imagine, no one betrayed another.

Imagine, we practiced thinking every day, every second, every moment."

"Imagine, a safe world for humanity.

Imagine, no child going to sleep with sorrow.

Imagine, no one being afraid of poverty.

Imagine, everyone walking together towards peace."

Today, the world is no longer a beautiful place.

We have forgotten kindness.

Undoubtedly, my dear, you're reading the news. Do you see that neither I nor you are doing well anymore?

Find the reason in the depths of people's hearts.

Do you see, humanity no longer matters?

Find the reason in the prices of weapons.

Do you see Israel was on the path to peace with the Arabs, but how did tensions arise?

Do you see Ukraine has turned into a war-torn country, a crisis?

Do you see Iran has been suffering for 44 years under a government its people don't identify with?

Have we forgotten love?"

What has happened that we no longer seek peace? These days, all humans are engulfed in sorrow. This sadness for the year 2023 isn't natural. Perhaps we, as humans, aren't yet prepared for advancements like technology, mobile phones, cars, and artificial intelligence. Maybe we think that humanity is only about telling lies, eating, working, and taking pills. Maybe we've forgotten that the best feeling for a human is to help others, the greatest joy is to give food to those who have none. Perhaps we've forgotten that love is the greatest treasure for a human. Maybe we've forgotten that not believing in lies and increasing our knowledge through reading scientific, research, and historical books is the path to awareness. Perhaps we've forgotten that each of us can be the best in creating peace.

We've forgotten many things. We don't use our intelligence. We've all become robots working just to survive, and sometimes, we even forget ourselves and lose sight of who we are.

Let's all cry out together for a joyful world, a world where there is no discrimination or inequality among any of God's creatures, a world where we believe we are ready for eternity. A world where we believe it is established for love and the salvation of others from despair, a world that values humanity and goodness, a world that cares for the environment, a world where no country harbors hatred or enmity toward another. A world without war is my wish, our wish, and we must make this wish a reality.

We need to start with ourselves.

Are you capable of forgiving all those who have wronged you? Are you capable of loving? Can you refrain from using anything that is not recyclable and harms the environment? Can you distance yourself from delusional ideas? Can you encourage those who lack sufficient knowledge to read? Can you live without arguing, debating, worrying, and knowing that being happy in the moment is enough? Do you love philosophy? Do you have the idea of serving those who have no financial gain for you in your mind? Has your heart not longed for yourself?

Without a doubt, we have all thought about all these issues. Perhaps we should think about them again, but perhaps we might not believe that it's only ourselves who can start for a good, humane, and conscious life. We can begin with knowledge and awareness, with reading and study, with researching important issues to promote peace.

Once again, I say,
A world without war is my wish.
